Docket number P-15056-000

Dear Ms. Bose,

I am writing to strongly object to a proposal by Premium Energy Holdings of California to build a hydroelectric power plant at the Ashokan Reservoir, Town of Olive, Ulster County, in New York's Catskill Mountains. The proposal would include a reservoir of up to 300 acres at one of three sites (to be chosen) and a tunnel to bring the water to the east shore of the upper basin of the Ashokan Reservoir. The three potential sites are Chichester, Woodland Valley, and the Moonhaw Valley in the hamlet of West Shokan, Town of Olive. My comments are confined to the Moonhaw and adjacent regions of West Shokan.

Moonhaw is a settled area of some 50 homes, full of families and close neighbors. A 300-acre reservoir would destroy this community and their homes — and the tunnel leading from it would disrupt another 50 homes in the region between Moonhaw and the proposed power plant.

Furthermore the upper reaches of the Moonhaw Valley are within a designated Wilderness Area of the New York State Forest Preserve and thus protected from development of any kind by the "forever wild" clause of the New York State Constitution.

Such wholesale destruction of a major portion of West Shokan cannot be allowed. I strongly urge you to recommend that Premium Energy's proposal be rejected.

Thank you for your consideration,

Ann Shields
